Best Practices in Pre-trial Litigation in the Federal Courts

A systematic approach to organizing and executing pre-trial planning and preparation

General Dwight Eisenhower said, "In preparing for battle, I have always found that plans are useless, but planning is indispensable." When your time comes, will you be ready?

Good pretrial preparation may eliminate the need for trial. In fact, more often than not, pretrial practice, discovery, summary judgment, and settlement have become the focus of federal litigation.

Drawing on a wealth of experience from a panel of Eastern District Court judges and attorneys who regularly appear before the Court, this program offers a useful guide to pretrial planning for the "well-ried" case. Utilizing a systematic approach, the panel will walk you through the process, sharing concepts and strategies that can teach you how to think and act as a successful advocate in the practice of pretrial litigation.
